

Meet Our Doctors

Dr. Alan Wolf

Ophthalmologist

Residency

George Washington University Hospital

Medical School, 1967

University of Maryland School of Medicine
Baltimore, MD

Alan F. Wolf, MD is a practicing Ophthalmologist (Eye Specialist and surgeon) in Baltimore, MD. Dr. Wolf graduated from University of Maryland School of Medicine in 1967 and has been in practice for 51 years. He completed a residency at George Washington University Hospital. He currently practices at Charm City Eye Care Center and is affiliated with Anne Arundel Medical Center. Dr. Wolf is board certified in Ophthalmology. He has extensive experience in diagnosing and treatment of many eye diseases such as Glaucoma, Cataracts, Macular Degeneration, and many others. Dr. Wolf also practices at Surgical Center of Greater Annapolis in Arnold, MD.

Dr. Bruce Sumlin

Ophthalmologist

Medical School, 1990

University of Illinois College of Medicine
Chicago, IL

Dr. Bruce Sumlin is a board certified Ophthalmologist specializing in glaucoma management, cataract surgery, and refractive surgery. Dr. Sumlin has been in practice for over 28 years. Throughout his career, Dr. Sumlin has performed thousands of eye surgeries and helped thousands of patients. Dr. Sumlin did his undergraduate work at Duke University and went on to the University of Illinois College of Medicine to earn his doctorate. He then went on to the National Eye Institute in Bethesda, Maryland for a research fellowship, and his residency program was spent at Henry Ford Hospital Eye Care Services in Chicago, Illinois. Dr. Sumlin is dedicated to educating his patients and the prevention of eye disease.